The Coronavirus Control Scan utility from Zillya! Software provides a comprehensive detection of coronavirus and its variants. The Utility scans your system and provides you with a quick overview of your virus status. It includes comprehensive scanning with all virus detections, high-end protection against Ransomware and a detailed report, which includes timestamped details about all virus definitions. You can set the Utility to scan for multiple virus definitions from a configurable list of virus families. Coronavirus has its own section, as well as viruses with the same name but different unique IDs. The results of the detection are shown in both graphical and tabular format, so that you can quickly assess the threat. All detected virus definitions are listed and you can open them to see the details. You can generate the detailed infection report from the present situation or from a saved prior result. Even if the virus definitions were successfully updated, Zillya! Software provides you with a quick overview of the update process. Zillya! Software automatically analyses if there is any reason for the definition not to be available for download. The Utility also shows the type of the virus definition that needs to be updated. An additional button offers you the possibility to run an automatic updater process. This offers you the immediate availability of the latest virus definition in case of a missing Internet connection. This utility is a great tool that offers basic virus detection, high-end anti-ransomware protection and detailed information about viruses that it finds. The latest addition is the possibility to easily scan for multiple virus definitions from a configurable list, allowing you to get a quick overview of virus definitions available for download.
